AMHERST COLLEGE.

AMHERST:
PRESS OF WILLIAM FAXON.
1855.

VIII. Every occupant of a room in College, shall, before he leaves in vacation, deposit his key, labelled with his name, and the number of his room, in the place provided for the purpose ; and no student can be permitted to occupy his room in vacation, unless he shall first obtain special permission from the Faculty.

CHAPTER IX.

DAMAGES AND REPAIRS.

I. Any student who shall damage, destroy or purloin property belonging to the College, shall make good the same, and may also be assessed to an equal amount to be appropriated to general repairs ; or suffer any College punishment, according to the nature and circumstances of the offence.

II. Every student shall be responsible for any damage which the room he occupies may sustain, while he is in town, except what arises from its customary wear, or is otherwise unavoidable.

III. The students are not allowed to throw out of the windows water or anything else which may deface the exterior of the College buildings, or injure the appearance of the grounds around them, nor to play ball, or engage in any diversion, on the front side of them, or near them.

IV. Every student is required to observe the regulations which the Prudential Committee may prescribe for the preservation of the College buildings from injury or loss by fire.

V. When any damage is done to the College buildings or appurtenances, and the author cannot be known, it shall be assessed equally upon all students, and charged in their term bills.

VI. No student shall make repairs, additions or alterations in any room in College, without leave from the President, or a committee of the Faculty.

VII. In no case shall a student bring into the College premises, any cannon, musket, pistol, or other species of fire-arms, or any gunpowder in any mode of preparation ; and in no case, in term time, shall any student be concerned in the discharge of any fire-arms or fire-works in the town of Amherst.

CHAPTER X.

MISDEMEANORS AND PUNISHMENT.

I. The Government of this College earnestly desire, that the students may be influenced to good conduct and literary exertion, by higher motives than the fear of punishment, and it mainly relies for the success of the Institution, as a plan of liberal education, on moral and religious principle, a sense of duty, and the generous feelings which belong to young men engaged in honorable pursuits ; but when such motives fail, the Faculty will have recourse to friendly caution and warning ; solemn admonition and official notice of delinquency to parents and guardians, lowering the rank, refusal to grant privileges and indulgencies allowed to meritorious students ; and where the nature and circumstances of the case require it, to suspension, removal or expulsion. Fines also may be imposed by vote of the Faculty.

II. The Instructors severally shall notice absences from College exercises, and delinquencies, and report them to the Faculty weekly. And it is the duty of the Professors, Tutors and all other College officers, to assist in enforcing the laws and in maintaining the discipline of the Institution, especially to send to their rooms all students assembled without authority in study hours or in an illegal and disorderly manner ; to notice on the spot all violations of the law, when necessary ; and to lay before the Faculty all cases of misdemeanor requiring further censure.
