California Letter.

Perhaps it is time I should give the readers of THE TRIBUNE another sketch of Southern California. I do not know what to write to please the people best. But I do know what we are in need of more than any other one thing, unless it is salvation, and that is a good old Arkansas rain. There has fallen here in the past two years barely six inches of water. How do we make anything do you ask? Indeed there has not been full crops during this period. But when I tell you the depths to water you will doubtless see one reason why vegetation grows here. The average depth to surface water is 41-2 feet. This sub-irrigation is a benefactor in the cause. And to this and what little rain that does fall the people who farm on a large scale depend. But most people have only twenty to forty acres, and irrigate from artesian wells. I am irrigating now with one 7 inch well that flows 147 cubic inches, and with two others that flow about 36 cubic inches. In fifteen days one can thoroughly wet twenty acres with this amount of water. Barley harvest is now in progress and will continue about three weeks. Then preparations for celery will begin. Two crops here per year. But the products are not confined to barley and celery. They are varied. Alfalfa is the best pay of any, considering the amount of labor. There are four cuttings each season, and a yield of about two tons per acre each time. The sugar beet crop is almost a failure on account of dry weather.

Santa Monica wind is blowing till I can't think of anything to write. Doubtless there are but few people in Arkansas who understand the term. The Santa Monica winds originate on the ocean and blow a gale by the way of Santa Anna at the rate of about 40 miles per hour. No doubt many people in that country think the wind doesn't blow from the east west of the Rocky Mountains. If you think that way, just come out here and stay until one of those winds come from off the desert and sweep down the Santa Anna River, filled chuck full to the brim and running over with sand, and you will believe differently. Those winds are known here as Santa Anna winds. Everything has Sant (Saint) to it. Quite a number of the people are Latter Day Saints.

I will describe my largest neighbor as best I can. It is one of those big sand hills that many who have been West have seen and can testify to my statement. Imagine a bare and rocky plateau, studded with dirt houses, apparently stone, and surrounded to the

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

See and $1.00, all druggists. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

edge, where it dips into an almost perpendicular canyon on one side, and the Santa Anna canyon on the other, by a steep wall. On all sides imagine bleak, gray, sometimes almost white, sand hills, over-lapping the plateau. Imagine between these distant hills and this little plateau on which you are supposed to stand, glistening and vavernous vallies, running into Santa Anna valley. Everywhere imagine bare, precipitous hills, denuded of all vegetation, gray and forbidding; but majestic in their very business, and you have the picture. This, however, is drawn very imperfectly and rudely, to be sure, but it will give you some idea of the monster hill to my east, known as Old Bally.

Let I weary the patience of the reader, I will close for this time. I am going to the beach when I get through irrigating.
